DETAILED ACTION

1. This communication is in response to the applicant's Amendment filed June 26, 2006. Claims 19 and 20 are pending in this case.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed June 26, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues, with respect to claims 19 and 20, that nothing in the cited prior art teaches or suggests compressed ID values or compressed lists. It is noted that nothing in the claims references compression of ID values or lists.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 19-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kaufman (US 6,178,508) in view of Blandford (US 6,470,449).

5. Regarding claim 19 –

Kaufman discloses a method for authentication of a user of a hand-held data processing device, comprising: creating a list of check values on a computer, each said check value in said list corresponding to a character string representing an authorized user (e.g. col 2 ln 28-31); transferring said list of cyclic redundancy check values to said hand-held data processing device (e.g. col 2 ln 30-32); inputting a user identification character string into said hand-held data processing device (e.g. col 3 ln 10-20); and determining if said value for said user identification character string represents an authorized character string with said hand-held data processing device (e.g. col 2 ln 25-50).

6. Kaufman, does not disclose, but Blandford does, calculating a cyclic redundancy check value for said user identification character string with said hand-held processing device; comparing said cyclic redundancy check value for said user identification character string to said list of cyclic redundancy check values with said hand-held data processing device (e.g. col 1 ln 65 – col 2 ln 10).

7. It would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine the teachings of Kaufman and Blandford, since they are both in the area of the encryption arts and in order to obtain greater security in data management. (col 3 ln 10-20); and to combine the

8. Regarding claim 20 –

Kaufman discloses the method of claim 19, further comprising sorting and storing said list of list of cyclic redundancy check values (e.g. col 2 ln 25-50).

9. Examiner's note: Examiner has cited particular columns and line numbers in the references as applied to the claims above for the convenience of the applicant.

Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may be applied as well. It is respectfully requested from the applicant, in preparing the responses, to fully consider the references in entirety as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention as well as the context of the passage as taught by the prior art or disclosed by the examiner.

is the method of claim 19, further comprising sorting and storing said
